“The KWS inspires and unites our community through music,” stated Christopher Sharpe, Director of Education and Community Programs. “The KWS regularly performs in local venues across Waterloo Region for diverse audiences. The feedback we hear from our host venues is incredible. These community performances are an important part of our mandate to weave the KWS into the fabric of the community we serve.”

Led by KWS Assistant Conductor Evan Mitchell a large ensemble of strings plus French horn will perform works by Mozart, Handel and others.

For more information on these performances or other outreach work done by the KWS, visit www.kwsymphony.ca.

Founded in 1945, the Kitchener-Waterloo Symphony is a core cultural organization for the Region of Waterloo and beyond. Our mandate is to inspire and unite our community through music. A diverse and rich musical season of over 90 concerts is presented over a 38-week concert season, reaching 80,000 people each year across the Region of Waterloo, Guelph, and Toronto. National and international attention has been garnered for our innovative programming and extensive, participatory education programs. Education and outreach programs serve our evolving community, tailored to a continuum of ages and all backgrounds. Through the Conrad Centre for the Performing Arts the KWS supports local theatre, music, and dance organizations. The KWS continues to be the largest employer of artists and cultural workers and the most significant cultural asset for Waterloo Region.
